Giscard Urges Reagan to Consult Allies

By Axel Krause

onal Hernid Tribune PARIS - President Valery Giscard d'Estaing said Tuesday that he was favorahly impressed by the manner in which President Reagan was approaching the world's problems. He suggested that consultations be strengthened between the United States and its key allies.

But the French leader, in an hourlong televised exchange with three French journalists, also emphasized that "dialogue" should be maintained with the Soviet Union on such questions as Poland and limiting nuclear proliferation, Asserting that French foreign policy "is not fuzzy" and is aimed primarily at defending France's in-terests, Mr. Giscard d'Estaing said he had excluded any movement by France to return to full NATO membership, as he noted some observers had alleged. Nor, he said, would it return to colonialism.

Commenting oo France's view of the Reagan administration, he said his reaction to the U.S. president was "favorable."

WARSAW — Again the Polish government and the country's first independent trade union are battling, but this time the issues are vaguer and the stakes are higher. The union's previous strikes and strike threats were over lofty prin-ciples - the right to unionize independently of the Communist Party, to get that union legally registered and to enforce wage agree-meots. These were bedrock matters, relating to the union's very right and reason to exist and as such were readily grasped by every Polish worker. The current strikes center upon an issue that is less compelling: the union's insistence upon an imme-diate five-day workweek. It is not a well-chosen cry for returning to the barricades. A good oumber of workers, impressed by the daily mounting evidence of the deteriorating economy, feel that perhaps they should work at least some Saturdays for the good of Mother

Poland. "It is worst possible issue," conceded a leader of the union's Warsaw chapter. "It makes us sound unpatriotic. And so the government is in no hurry to settle it."

But what is disturbing is not the issue. A shortened workweek is eminently negotiable, especially since both sides have accepted the principle and are arguing only about how quickly to introduce it.

What is unsettling is that something so easy to negotiate should granting the government time to effect changes, and the government has narrowed its definition of those changes it is willing to permit. One gets the impression that the two were casting about for an issue to disagree upon, and the five-day workweek was the oearest in reach.

The government claims that only 40 percent of the work force heeded the union's call to stay off the job last Saturday. In contrast, the union's estimate is 80 percent, and probably closer to the truth. The danger is that the government may come to believe its own propaganda, and that the union may be losing touch with the workers.

Popular support is, ultimately, the union's only guarantee for survival. If the government miscalcu-lates and believes that support to be waning, it could be fured into. attempting a more frontal attack. The five-day week will be settled

As might be expected, this is an indication that other forces and under the thumb of the church." pressures are at work beneath the surface. The five-day week is a smokescreen for deeper discootents and suspicions, and it is precisely this amorphous aspect that makes the dispute so difficult to resolve. . On the government side, the predominant reality is that it has been put on notice by other Warsaw Pact countries that it must reassert control - and that the 26 Soviet divisions in place across the border could instantly smash Polish sovereignty and any popular support for the party here well into the 21st century. The government cannot afford to appear too flexible, and it has finally found an issue that, in terms of domestic propaganda. is partially winnable.

Within the party the residual strength of those who might be termed hard-liners appears greater than expected, especially in the middle ranks of the apparatus. In the upper leadership, most now appear to regard reform as something that must be grudgingly accepted, as a corrective remedy for the party to survive but certainly oot as something that is desirable in and of itself.

On the unico's side there is the conviction that the government is

That the government gave more than it had been asked was regarded as less important than the fact that it did not honor a gentlemen's agreement. "How can you bargain with the people who don't keep their word?" he demanded.

New York Times Service NORFOLK, Va. - The Soviet Union has embarked on the building of major surface ships that appear to be designed for service in the Third World, outside the "choke points" that NATO analysts believe would constrain Soviet naval strategy in the event of Anthoritative naval sources at the headquarters of the Western alliance's naval command disclosed that one new heavy emiser. the Sovremenny, is already at sea. although it has not yet been armed with its guns - described as heavier than anything installed on any other Soviet surface ship. The Sovremenny, a 7,600-ton vessel, will carry, in addition to the guns, an array of advanced sur-face-to-surface missiles.

The Sovremenny and other ships of its class were described as fallow-ups to the Kirov battle cruiser deployed last year. There is no definite information at present on how many other ships of this class are planned.

New Class

However, four ships of a new class built for anti-submarine warfare are reported to be under construction at the Kommuna Shipyards at Nikolayev, near Odessa on the Black Sea. These vessels, of 8,500 tons, are to be powered by gas-turbine engines. Designed for anti-submarine doties, the ships will carry helicopters and a variety of anti-submarine weapons.

A 12,500-ton missile cruiser, the lead ship of a class of three, is also under construction at Nikolayev, according to sources with access to the most recent intelligence reports. This ship, as yet unnamed, was described as "a miniature Kirov," with a speed estimated at 34 knots.

The emphasis in new Soviet construction on heavy guns and the most advanced surface-to-air missiles are two pieces in the thus far incomplete mosaic of Soviet naval intentions. But indications have multiplied that the naval high command intends to use the new ships for operations far from Soviet home ports.

The military advantage of this, according to Adm. Harry Train, who commands both the Atlantic Fleet and NATO forces in the At-lantic, is that the ships would be able to operate beyond the choke points.

The four major Soviet fleets could operate effectively in war JDL's Los Angeles office denied only after they had moved through any involvement.

Murdoch, The Times, and Unions

Just as Rupert Murdoch, the Australian press baron, has every right to succeed Lord Thompson, Lord Northcliffe and Baron Astor as proprietor of The Times of London, so the loyal readers of The Times have a right to question his intentions toward the paper they love. The same holds true for the other papers in the package he hopes to buy, The Sunday Times, The Times Literary Supplement and the two Times education supplements. As everyone knows, the newspapers Mr. Murdoch currently owns are based on a different model from The Times and The Sunday Times. Crime and sex are the politics and culture of journals like The Sun and The News of the World. Mr. Murdoch has said he is "not seeking to change the [Times papers] into something entirely different. Whatever proposals for progress may be developed, there will be no fundamental change in the characteristics.'

That is a worthy pledge, but it gives less comfort than Mr. Murdoch's formal undertakings to protect the editorial quality and integrity of all five publications, should he be able to reach agreement with the print unions and buy the package. The statement issued by the management of The Times suggests that the editors of the publications and the Times's independent board of national directors will have full authority to act as guardians of both quality and integrity. In fact, those undertakings appear to give more authority to editors and less to the publisher than is common in journalism in Britain or anywhere else.

If Mr. Murdoch means what he says, or if at least his undertakings are enforceable; if he finds it possible to make the package of publications profitable without changing their character; then he is providing a significant service by saving two of the world's great newspapers. Ultimately, his ability to do that will depend on whether or not he can reach an agreement with the group of unions that forced the sale in the first place. He has two and a half more weeks to do that. Unless he persuades the unions to permit him to introduce cost-saving technology, his effort is almost certainly doomed and it is unlikely that others will succeed where he has failed. INTERNATIONAL HERALD TRIBUNE.

The Hostages as 'Extortionist Theater'

The Crisis Next Time

Vice Adm. James B. Stockdale, who was a prisoner of war in Hanoi for eight years, has written (on this page) a stunning critique of the way the United States - its institutions and its individuals - plays into the hands of those who hold its citizens captive. He believes, among other things, that U.S. efforts to win partial concessions and provide little mercies actually work to make things worse for the captives and/or to prolong their captivity. Earlier, Israel's Moshe Dayan, no stranger to these affairs, also argued (IHT, Jan. 26) for a more clear-cut, direct and forceful U.S. stand in any future such episodes, suggesting that stealthy, dark of night "apologetic" attempts at Entebbe-like action were inappropriate to the power and circumstances of the United States. The positions of both men have an authenticity that proceeds not just from their special qualification to speak, but equally from the logic of what they say.

Even as the returning American hostages must still be unaccustomed to their freedom and obliged to remind themselves from time to time that it's okay to say what they please, so too the American public, restrained until now by concern for the hostages' safety, will probably need some time to understand that it can also speak freely at last and without inhibition. And in a general way it no doubt will need some reminding that all complaint and criticism of past policy is not, repeat not, the forbidden and legendary "nightmare of recrimination" against which the more voluble among us are continually being warned.

Perhaps because we in the United States have had a few truly raw experiences with fter-the-fact blaming and purging and scapegoating when our foreign relations went wrong, we are almost neurotic in our anxiety to avoid any disagreeable arguments concerning our overseas failures now. "Let's look to the future," we are admonished, "not dwell on the past. There's blame enough for everybody. It's easy to say what was wrong in hindsight. Let's not turn this into a Who Lost China' debate ... " and so forth. But there is a huge difference between merely nasty, politically motivated charges concerning a defeat or setback abroad and the rigorous, unsentimental inspection of how and where we went wrong that is essential to recovering from it - and to preventing a repetition of our mistakes next time around.

Only a fool would claim that there exists somewhere in the realm of objective fact a collection of all-purpose rules for dealing with these terror situations - and one that is accessible to anyone who is willing to think rationally about the subject. No number of well-intended inquiries is going to provide us with a set of perfect guidelines to haul down from the shelf and follow the next time the unthinkable happens. But there is plenty in the case of the embassy hostages that needs to be reviewed and subjected to the toughest and most unprotected scrutiny for the sake of doing things better in the future: the role of the media, the appropriateness of negotiations, the attitude toward the use of force, the attitude toward the well-being of the hostages and the way in which their well-being is a part of more comprehensive national interests.

With the exception of the hostages themselves, we don't think anyone will come out of such an inquiry looking awfully prescient or good. But that is not a reason to avoid such inquiry. On the contrary, it suggests

Vice Adm. Stockdale, who spent nearly a decade as a prisoner of war in North Vietnam, "tears apart" some of the false assumptions about captivity.

WASHINGTON — As an eight-year be-teagnered and bludgeoned captive of Hanoi who spent most of that time in solitary confinement, I have in recent months been bombarding audiences from the Eastern sea-board to Ohin to California with the message that the United States has been inviting future hostage disasters by so naively providing both actors and zudiences in support of the new worldwide art form, "Extorianist Theater" ---most recently successfully produced by Iran.

Every nutlaw power and terrorist group in the world surely took note of how Jummy Carter's queasiness about the threat or use of force, and our national demand fur continuous TV hostage scap opera, provided the positive and negative terminals of a power source into and negative terminals of a power source mto which they could plug a few U.S. captives for profit and prestige. We got ourselves into this tempting and vulnerable position by backing inth what became a national stance roughly attuned to a misguided popular sentiment that fell out of highly questionable if not false as-sumptions about the basic nature of the captiv-ing problem. ity problem.

On my road show, I contrasted some of these assumptions with the reality I knew behind barbed wire and proceeded to tear them apart. The sample below will give you an idea of what I meno.

False Assumption No. 1: "We must not hannoer the captors or they'll take it out on the captives." Ask any of the 400 Americans in the prisoners' organization in Hanoi and they'll tell you that our North Vietnamese jailers were never more sweet than right after Col. Bull Simon's Son Tay belicopter rescue attempt (when he shot up a couple hundred of them, and they in turn, for security reasons, felt obliged to bring us leaders out of solitary posturing and meekly broke precedent by bringing us tubs of bot coffee each dawn). Our bones got broken as often as not during America's sporadic bombing pauses when we were showing national "good will." Does the Iranian experience correlate with this? I think it does. Being nice to the enemy so he'll be nice to your captives is still a bush-league idea.

The Supplicant Role

False Assumption No. 2: "We as a country are doing best by the captives if we support the infusion of 'a little bit of home' into their lives by sending visitors, at least during the Christ-mas season." Rev. Do-Good, or even William Sloane Coffin and Ramsey Clark, some Americans believe, are better than nobody. To fully realize the evil these people do, the damage they wreak on the morale and self-respect of the captives, one has to appreciate the tremen-dous encobing and uplifting effect the over-coming of shared hardships has on a band of prisoners over time. In Hanoi, the greater the degradation and torture and the more years we withstood this together, the deeper grew the bonds of mutual respect and love for each other. Our world literally became our band of brothers, and personal pride and reputation among our peers our total life's investment, Captors became symbols of tinhorn fakery.

Imagine now the stage of Extortion Theater onto which enter "the friendly representatives of the people back home" - all of whom are necessarily admitted as supplicants, as apolo-gists. Moreover, these visitors are psychologi-cally committed to dragging the captives be-fore cameras as actors in the supplicant role. "Let the people at bome see you" or "the intel-ligence people want to see you" or "the intel-say. Though feeling humiliation, few captives can muster the emotional energy to take on these American finks as enemies. Each has enough enemies to concentrate on even though these so-called friends are on the make, and they destabilize and damage the prisoner's life. ctimes these finks damage his most prized possession: his reputation. Ramsey Clark came to Hanoi and incited U.S. prisoners of war to violate their Code of Conduct and got a few takers. When does he account for that and anticle for The Washington Post.

Britain's Labor Party: Final Clunk?

By Wayland Young

for the disinformation he spread about the situation in Iran? False Assumption No. 3: "Any release is a good release; if they'll agree to return 5 out of 52 next week, encourage it." Thank goodness this is often identified as a poor bargaining idea as seen from Washington; what our politi-cians and countrymen in general need to understand is the true and total perniciousness of early releases as seen from within that band of brothers behind barbed wire. Each person who walks out ahead of the others leaves behind him a trail of lifelong grudges and broken uni-ty, and he installs within himself a time bomb of depressive remote.

Grand Finale

The early release idea also has the potential The early release idea also has the potential of providing the producers of Extortinnist Theater with a grand finale act featuring the captives scrambling for places in line to go home by scoring high in an anti-American propaganda production contest. Hanoi had something like that in mind for us POWs, but I and others finessed that finale with strict orders to all Americans that there would be no exception to the Code of Conduct's prohibition against accepting parole. I also outlawed the accepting of annesty. After our release, my constituents demanded justice in the form of prosecution of the few who bugged out in violation of my orders. Funny thing, though; I couldn't find anybody in Washington who understood the problem.

These problems and a dozen more like them need to be understood if we are going to truly shot down Extortionist Theater on, a "never again" basis. The United States has to get itself in hand, get its actors off the stage and get our audiences ready to shed not tears but rotten eggs and at least a credible threat of bombs and bayonets the minute the next bunch of punks tries to pull our chain by taking prisoners.

What the Cheers Are For Watching the hostages return, a line from "Hair," the rock musical, kept coming to mind: "Crazy for the red, white, blue - and Yellow ... Fringe." In the late 1960s, the fourth color signified bitter division over the draft and Vietnam. Now, the U.S. countryside is abloom in red, white, blue - and yellow ribbons; the air is filled with prayers and cheers, bells and bands. The festivities are as welcome as the occasion. The hostages are not all that has returned to the United States.

Other Americans who suffered abroad in the country's service have also come home in recent years: the crew of the Pueblo; Vietnam prisoners of war; and, for that matter, Vietnam veterans. None experienced anything like the current outpouring of feeling. War had divided the country and made patriotism suspect.

Now, the pride and patriotism that many people tried to unfurl during the Bicentennial have erupted without embarrassment. It's not as though there are no more divisions in the United States. Different people are obviously cheering different things; some are relieved that the hostages returned without more bloodshed, some are cheering the end of unbearable humiliation.

But on every side, there has suddenly appeared a need to express national unity, to demonstrate an unashamed patriotism.

The hostages say they never expected such a welcome. How could they? They have returned to a different country than the one they knew only 14 months ago.

Mitterrand: Looking Better

· Francois Mitterrand looks better placed to win the French presidential election than he did only a few months ago. He has succeeded in overcoming the divisions within his own Socialist Party. At the same time, recent opinion polls have shown him closing the gap between himself and President Valery Giscard d'Estaing.

The surprising thing is not that Mr. Giscard d'Estaing should appear to be vulnera-ble but that he should have appeared so strong for so long. He will, after all, have been in office for seven years.

Unemployment is up to 1.5 million, and inflation was 13.6 percent last year. There have also been a number of scandals.

Even so, Mr. Giscard d'Estaing will have enormous support as the incumbent, and many French voters may hesitate at the last moment at the thought of electing a president from the left.

If Mr. Mitterrand is elected, it will be the biggest change in French political life since 1958, when De Gaulle came to power and laid the foundations of the Fifth Republic. Mr. Mitterrand himself has been unwilling to say whether he would have Communists in his government. He has confined himself to undertaking to dissolve the National Assembly, with its Giscardian and Gaullist majority, and to hold new legislative elections with a view to getting a new majority that he would work with.

TV Anti-Violence Group in U.S. Ties Deaths of 16 to Movie Scene

United Press International

WASHINGTON - The National Coalition on Television Violence says that 16 persons have killed themselves imitating the Russian roulette scene from the movie "The Deer Hunter." The film was shown last year on television in the United States.

The coalition, formed in September to monitor television vio-lence, said that the deaths are "... further proof that television violence kills and that on-the-air warnings are of little value." The group says that 45 percent of television violence comes from movies shown on TV.

In its January newsletter, the coalition said that 16 persons, most of them teen-agers, all of whom had seen the film, died playing Russian roulette since March 20. It added that two persons were scriously wounded, including an "unidentified White House Secret Service agent." The newsletter named 15 of those killed.

The coalition also said that more X-rated films were produced last year than those with G ratings. No one under 17 years old is admitted to X-rated films; G-rated films are for all ages. Production of G-rated films fell from 32 percent of all films made in 1968 to 4 percent last year.

Coalition chairman Dr. Thomas Radecki, associated with the Southern Illinois University School of Medicine, attributed the growth of movie violence to the rating system. "The MPAA [Motion Picture Association of America] rating system has made it seem childish to want to go to a movie without sex or violence, he said. "Producers are forced to add violence or an adult sex scene to avoid the G-rating which would cause a box office disaster even for movies aimed at children and adolescents."

Seoul that it would risk "the abuse of the relationship" with Washington if Mr. Kim were executed.

After Mr. Reagan's election in November, the private assessment of some of his aides, as well as some Carter administration officials, was that Mr. Kim would be executed during the U.S. presidential transition period, rather than after, to spare the incoming administration embarrassment. Mr. Muskie contacted both the Reagan foreign policy team and senior Republicans in Congress to make the case for elemency and for its importance to the U.S. national interest. The response from both quarters was positive.

Allen's Message

The most important message that followed was from Richard Allen, now Mr. Reagan's national security adviser. He said that in the view of the incoming administration, Mr. Kim's execution would have serious consequences for South Korea's relations with the United States as well as its relationship with Japan and other vital countries.

Mr. Allen also discussed with South Korean military and diplo-matic officials in Scoul and Washington the possibility of an official visit hy Gen. Chun once Mr. Reagan had taken office.

Some in the Reagan camp saw the prospective invitation to Washingian as a means of staving off Mr. Kim's execution long enough for the new administration, after taking office, to make a plea for acy. It was felt that Mr. clem Reagan's stroog support for South Korean security — as well as the outspoken opposition of his secre-tary of state, Alexander Haig Jr., to U.S. troop withdrawals - made a compelling case for a reciprocal gesture by Gen. Chun.

Washington was not informed before Mr. Reagan took office Jan. 20 that Gen. Chun would commute Mr. Kim's death sentence before leaving for the United States. But shortly after Mr. Reagan's official invitation was extended, Gen. Chun sent word of the action he was preparing to take.

Greek-U.S. Talks Seek Bases Pact

The Associated Press

ATHENS - Greece and the United States began negotiations Tuesday on an accord that is expected to preserve the four major and several lesser U.S. military facilities in Greece, along with U.S. military aid.

The two countries agreed in 1977 to continue operating the bases, but Greece has refused to ratify that agreement pending settlement of its status to NATO.

The delegations are led by U.S. Ambassador, Robert McCloskey and the secretary general at the Greek Foreign Ministry, Stavros Roussos. Both sides hope the accord will be signed by March.

Analysts attributed the plunge in gold and silver prices to comments by President Reagan and Paul Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, indicating they would like to see gold prices move sharply lower. Their comments were made during a meeting last Friday at which both agreed that lower gold prices would lessen inflationary expectations and bolster the dollar. Activity in the meeting did not produce any specific measures to achieve a lower gold price, many traders reacted by selling bullion. At their meeting, President Reagan said that he had read a prediction that the price of gold might drop to as low as $250 an ounce and that he took this as a sign that inflation was about to uga Loc I of the Amalgamated Union of Engineering Workers, described the figures as "deplorable and despicable." Labor, Unions Assail Government Policies

AP-Dow Jones LONDON -- Along with dou-ble-digit inflation, Britain now has double-digit unemployment. Another 175,223 Britons became unemployed in January, bringing the total to 2,419,452, or 10 per-cent of the workforce including school leavers, the Department of Employment announced Tuesday. This compares with 9.3 percent un employment only a month ago and 6.1 percent out of work a year car-Unemployment has been wors-ening steadily in Britain. Last May, it stood at 6.2 percent; since then it has risen every month and is predicted to continue climbing.

The sharp increase in January was expected. Earlier in the month, Employment Secretary James Prior warned Britain to expect "another very big rise" in the unemployment figure. "The under-lying rise will be strongly rein-forced by the usual seasonal factors," he explained. In the event, he was correct. The department estimated an underly-ing rise of 103,000 persons, with another 66,000 persons oot of work because of seasonal factors such as the weather and hiring patterns. The comparable underlying rate was 105,000 persons in De-cember, 135,000 in November and

108,000 in October. Taking into account these seasonal factors and excluding those leaving school during the month, memployment in January was at 9.3 percent, up from 8.8 percent in

The rise in noemployment brought a now familiar chorus of condemnation from opposition figures. "Today a despondent and depressed Britain commemorates Margaret Thatcher's million and more," said Erie Varley, the Labor Party's shadow employment secretary, referring to the approximate-ly 1.16 million persons who have been added to the unemployment lists since Mrs. Thatcher became prime minister. He said the employment secretary's removal from office would be "one further re-dundancy that Britain's beleagured unemployed would welcome." Labor Party leader Michael Foot called the figures "tragic and terrible" and called for a debate in Terry Duffy, presiden

Rolls-Royce Attacks Pratt's Sales Method

AP-Dow Jones

LONDON - Rolls-Royce has suggested that the Pratt & Whitney division of United Technologies has spent large sums on risky guarantees to sell its fuel-efficient jet engine and to prevent Rolls from building a rival model.

At a news conference Monday, Lord McFadzean, chairman of the government-owned company, said he believed that Pratt & Whitney offered American Airlines between $40 million and $50 million to clinch a sale. That sum was meant to compensate American, he said, for having to wait an extra two years while the new engine, which is only in the design state, was being readied. Both American and Delta airlines last month chose the Pratt &

Whitney engine for their recently ordered Boeing 757s.

Rolls Setback

It was a setback for Rolls, which previously had won contracts for its RB 211-535 engine for Boeing planes purchased by British Airways and Eastern Airlines.

Lord McFadzean suggested that Prait & Whitney was able to win the contracts by offering guarantees for 10 years that its new engine, the 2037, will use 8-percent less fuel than anything built by its competitors. The U.S. company's ultimate goal, be said, might be to thwart production of an improved version of Rolls' RB 211-

535, which he said will be compentive. Rolls has moved up the timetable on its production of the new engine so that it will be ready in late 1984, the same date targeted by Pratt & Whitney.

Its an Associated Press report, a spokesman for Pratt & Whit-ney, responding to Lord McFadzean's statement, said, "We and Rolls and any other major engine manufacuturer are certainly not going to release any information concerning our competitive package.

["I'm not going to discuss that at all," said company spokesman James Lynch when asked whether Pratt & Whitney had offered

American money to buy the engines. [Lord McFadzean's remarks "sound like the comments of a petulant loser," he said.]

Despite the loss of the engine orders, Rolls officials predicted the company will swing back into profitability next year after posting a loss in 1979. Peter Molouy, finance director, said 1980 saw the company move halfway toward that goal, but exact fig-ures will not be available until April. In 1979, Rolls posted a loss of abard $127 million which per longith land a the automatic of about $137 million, which was largely blamed on the strength of the pound against the dollar.

Mr. Molony said the company's sales jumped nearly 50 percent last year from $2.05 billion in 1979. Plans to boost productivity include paring the workforce by 3,000 workers by the end of 1982, 10 54,000.

Rolls had hoped to sell the RB 211 to the Saudi Arabian airline, Saudia, for use in the European-made Airbus, So far, most Airbus Industrie planes have been fitted with General Electric engines, and the rest with Pratt & Whitney.

Regan Promises 'Bold' Plan WASHINGTON - Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said Tuesday that the administration will propose shortly "a bold, innovative economic recovery plan integrating the classical economic principles of sound budget policy, sound tax policy and sound mon-

The principle elements, he said, will include "slowing the budget growth, reducing tax rates, curbing and stabilizing monetary growth and lightening the regulatory bur-den " den." Calling the plan "a clear break with past policy," he said the eco-nomic package will be sent to Con-gress after Feb. 17. Mr. Regan said the "key ele-ment in the president's program is reduction in tax rates for individu-ale and immemut tax dinate for individuals and improved tax climate for capital formation." He indicated more than half of the individual tax cuts will be geared to increased personal savings, possibly through larger exemptions for interest and dividends.

Mr. Regan told reporters earlier in the day that there would be a 10-percent tax cut for each of three years and a business tax cut "prob-ably in the form of accelerated depreciation."

The tax program cannot wait until outlays are reduced, Mr. Regan said.

Both Mr. Regan and Budget Director-designate David Stockman indicated that the Reagan administration will rely heavily on actions of the Federal Reserve Board to curb inflatioo.

Mr. Regan told the Senate Ap-propriations Committee that inflation is "primarily a monetary phenomenon" and the end of inflation is "impossible if money growth rates outstrip the growth of goods and services year in and year out." He said it is up to the Fed to further tighten its monitary policies. "The major contribution of the Federal Reserve must be to bring down the growth rates of the monetary aggregates [money sup-ply], reducing inflation, inflation-ary expectations and interest rates," Mr. Regan said,

Mr. Stockman echoed Mr. Regan's remarks, saying the Fed's attempts to ease restrictions on the money supply in the spring and summer "exacerbated the inflationary psychology and drove in-terest rates still higher."

He also said he proposed "de-pendable reduction in the rate of growth of the nation's money supply.'

caution was passed by newly named U.S. chief trade negotiator

The Denman mission follows a mandate given the EEC Commis-sion last November to get Japan to slow its exports, especially of cars and electronics, or risk a trade war.

The Reagan administration's stance, as outlined by Mr. Brock, was that Japan should avoid any agreement to restrict car shipments to the EEC or else spark an uproar in the more important U.S. market for curbs on Japanese car important Japan had a $10-billion surplus with the EEC last year, sharply higher than the $7.1-billion surplus in 1979, according to European statistics. European diplomats said the abrupi U.S. warning reflected similar anxieties in Europe where governments are concerned that any deal to cut Japanese car exports to the United States would mean pressure on Japanese companies to make up losses eslewhere.

Japanese sources said the gov-ernment planned to tell Mr. Denman that the outlook for this year's sales to Europe would reflect a moderating trend, based largely on a stronger yen and the weakness of many European economics.

Kirkland Issues Warning

TOKYO - AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland told Japanese labor officials Tuesday his 17 millionmember union will not stand idle in the face of what he characterized as the U.S. auto industry "catastrophe" due principally to auto imports.

In an address to the Japan Insti-tute of Labor, Mr. Kirkland said auto import restrictions, a thorny issue between the United States and Japan, are essential to the economic health of the United States.

Mr. Regan said, "The president's tax, spending and regulatory program cannot succeed unless inflation is brought under control." Fed Chairman Paul Volcker later told the committee that he sees "no alternative to continued re-straint of excessive money and credit growth if we are to break the inflationary momentum." He said if the momentum of inflation is not broken, "interest rates will remain high indefinitely." The way to get interest rates lower and keep them there is to deal with inflation first, he said.

Consolidated Statement of Condition

But Mr. Voicker urged a coupling of spending cuts along with tax cuts, saying markets would rein the month, the department said. The increase followed an 0.4-percent rise in November.

The department said shipments fell $212 million, or 0.3 percept, to $79.53 billion last month after a 0.3 percent increase in November. Defense capital goods account-ed for just about all of the increase over November figures, the depart-ment said. New orders for defense capital goods totaled $5.87 billion in December, up 31.9 percent from November.

New orders for transportation quipment rose $1.81 billion, ot 11.3 percent. The department said this reflected the increase in defense orders.

BOOKS WAYS OF ESCAPE By Graham Greene. Simon & Schuster. 320 pp. $12.95.

Reviewed by Christopher Lehmann-Haupt

WITH characteristic diffidence, Graham Greene starts off "Ways of Escape" by practically telling us not to bother with this sequel to the autobiography he published 10 years ago. "A Sort of Life." He isn't going to write any-thing about his private life beyond the first 27 years be covered in the earlier book, he says in so many words in the preface to "Ways of Escape." because the years after be turned 27 "belonged as much to others as to myself" and "I couldn't infringe their copyright. He has "added es-says which I have written occasionally on episodes in my life and on some troubled places in the world where f have found myself involved for no good reason." And he has allowed his U.S. publisher to subtitle the resulting mix "An Autobiography." Why do we read "Ways of Escape" with such absorption, if it is nothing more than a collection of occasional pieces written "as a form of therapy"? The most obvi-ous answer is, because Greene could take the entries in a plumb-ing manual, tie them together gracefully and make them seem coberent and interesting. Further-more, "Ways of Escape" is decorated with striking physical de-scriptions of the many corners of caped. Huge Cake for Inauguration Ball Turns Out More Trick Than Treat

The Associated Press

QUINCY. Mass. --- A 7-foot, 3,000-pound cake baked for the inauguration of President Reagan and sent to Washington in six sections by truck never made it to the ball, its baker says.

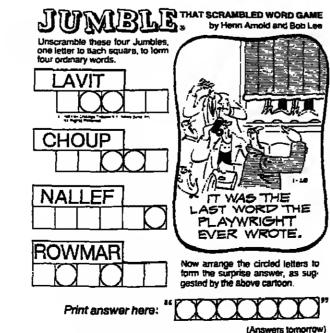

The cake could not be reassembled in Washington because it had become too soft and could not fit through the doors of the Kennedy Center, said baker Ernest Montilio Monday.

So, it was taken to the Army and Navy Club in Washington and "the Massachusetts Republican Committee, all the generals, admirals and military people" ate it, he said.

In addition to the size problems. Charles Graham, general manager of the Army and Navy Club, said dogs would have had to sniff the cake for hidden explosives as a security measure.

The 500-member asked Premier Arnaldo Forlani. a former journalist, to intervene.

The Italian government is preparing new quarters for the associauon in central Rome, but completion is scheduled for 1983. A gov-criment subsidy toward rent for the association office and an increase of 50 percent in dues was not enough to cover a fourfold rent increase.

The president of the club, John Earle of The Times of London, told colleagues the association was not able to foot the rent increase and would be forced to leave Friday if no solution were found.

Although it was common knowledge that highlights would be tele-vised nationwide Saturday night and although local cinemas had been wired for closed-circuit TV, probably more than 60,000 people began milling around Goodison hours before the 3 p.m. kickoff.

Many, including one man who had flown from Japan, had no tickets. The black market flourished, housekeeping money going into the deep pockets of the touts. In the tunnel beneath the stands, a man in black prepared to be the butt of the crowd's sarcasm. Referee Clive Thomas, a Welshman, had never been forgiven for denying an Everton goal that would have beaten Liverpool in the cup in 1977. Now the cards had dealt a rematch, and officialdom had placed Thomas in charge.

Color Coding

High up on the top balcony, as high as the escalators go, the pre-dominantly Evertoo crowd was whipping up a frenzy of anticipation. Across the stadium were brothers and sisters of the same family who came out of the same terraced housing and caught the same red bus to Goodison - and yet wore the red of Liverpool, not the blue of Everton. A mixed mar-

The cup is an altogether different war, yet nail-biting as the atmosphere always is, it is correctly without the violence it is generally without the violence of the English hooligan. In the Dark

A mixture of British football's abandonment of the yellow card system and the oppexistent passage of information to the paying fans meant nobody except Thomas knew how many players had been cautioned in the fracas. The game was now on a knife-edge of control. Players were rush-ing around at a force frenetic even by British standards, the performers psyched up by the crowd and hacking away without regard to the risk to livelihood. After an bour, the blues were deservedly two goals up, and after 70 minutes the hishop, his color now revealed as red, got up to leave. There seemed three possible reasons: He could not take this rare Liverpool humiliation; the verbal and at times physical abuse at our backs became intolerable; riage on Merseyside is two colors or he had nipped off for a quiet prayer.

A Daring Super Bowl Message: Try It expect it, I want it, But I also real-

By Dave Kindred Washington Post Service

WASHINGTON - Looking at the Super Bowl from, say, the Washington Redskins' angle, there is a lesson to be learned: Dare to

In eight of the last nine Supers, the bolder American Conference teams have besten the National Conference plodders. The average score has been 25-14. Something is going on here, and it is as obvious as Joho Mauszak's empty bed. Wednesday, the Raider defen-sive end blitzed himself all night on Bourbon Street. Just out of curiosity, somebody did a bed check the next night. Sure enough, Tonz' bed was there, unsullied by his body, A Raider official helped the ramhliog Raider fied the sheets before dawn cracked down. The average score was Matuszak 2, Dawn 0.

one wondered if Matuszak's nocturnal wanderings would cost him his starting job in the Super Bowl. Dick Vermeil, on the other hand, is a hangiog judge. The Phil-adelphia coach is a total-control guy out of the NFC mold. Someone asked Vermeil what he would do if Wilbert Montgomery, say, was poured out of a paddy wagon into bed at 4 a.m. "He'd be back in Philadelphia by now," Vermeil said. OK, bed checks have nothing to do with touchdowns. But the mind set that tolerates a Pro Bowler's eccentricities has everything to do with the Oakland Raiders' sustaioed success and, by extension, the success of the AFC.

Chance-Taker

Al Davis dares. He dares to hire John Matuszak, dismissed curtly by Paul Wiggins and George Al-len. He dares to trade a Hall of Fame quarterback (Ken Stahler) and pick up a broken-hearted quarterback (Jim Plunkett). Mostly, Davis dares to win. On the owner's order, the Raiders go for the big play offensively. "If for the big play offensively. "If you're afraid to lose," Davis says, "you'll never win big. You must play to win, not to avoid losing. That's why it is oot important that fim Plunkett has a relatively low completion percentage. We want the ball thrown deep, and he does

"For every playoff game, our of-fensive attitude has been the same: Be aggressive. The only thing I told Jim at the quarterback meeting before the Super Bowl was. "Don't be conservative. Let's do the same thing we did at San Di-ego. Go after them.' Against playoff-caliber teams, you can't af-ford to sit on any lead."

For Redskin zealors, these words should warm the heart. Joe Gibbs says the same thing. Attack. Make the defense adjust. Run on passing downs, pass on running downs. Throw it deep. As Coach Don Coryell's offensive coordinator for the AFC's San Diego Chargers, the new Redskin coach built a reputation for moving the ball by air mail.

OK, I hear you. You're saying this offensive tomfoolery is nice to look at, hut can it win? And you're saying Manuszaklike behavior is destructive of team discipline.

Tandems

Going deep woo't win by itself. The Redskins must have a running back such as John Riggins. Uotil "Air Coryell" picked up freight train Chuck Muncie, the Chargers were less than a championship of-fensive team. Without Kenny King and Mark van Eeghen running. Plunkett could throw his arm into obsolescence and never win a playoff game, let alone an unprecedented four straight road games in this Super Bowl tournament.

Going deep helps a whole ize they are human beings." bunch, though As demonstrated convincingly in the last 10 years, So he strokes the Tooz. He coddies the junked Plunkett. The written-off receiver caught two touchdown passes from the junked quarterback in a Super Bowl victory. not sending your best player home because he was out late four nights before the big game.

By daring, Oakland wins. By discipline, it wins. Of course, it "Unless a player proves to us he can't get along, we'll ury with him," said Davis, whose Raiders have been the last stop for dozens of helps to have good players. Bare Slopes Cripple Ski Industry

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. - "Normally, it's a good busi-ness," 34-year-old Marty Heffner said, looking dolefully around the deserted ski rental shop he manages here in the oormally bustling Sierra Nevada ski country.

"With snow, there's a lot of money to he made. No snow, it's terrible. It's like farming - some years good, some bad. The wrong eather and it's a disaster."

Although not yet at disaster pro-portions, the harvest in the West in terms of skiers and the dollars they feed into the economy is sparse indæd.

A mile up the mountain from the Old McDonald rental shop, where Heffner presides over racks of unrented skis and empty boots, several acres of parking lot at the Heavenly Valley resort are empty, the lifts are idle and slopes that swarmed with skiers last year are patchy and flecked with brown -- and are closed to skiers, Those resorts still open are largely catering to beginning and intermediate skiers. Most of the slopes for experts have too many rocks and other obstacles to be considered safe. "What we need is a big, big snow," sighed Kay Jones, an administrative assistant at world-class Squaw Valley U.S.A., site of the eighth Olympic Winter Games m 1960.

Presidential Buildup

By Russell Baker

NEW YORK - A new presi-IN dent always makes every-body feel so good, it's a pity we can't have one every two weeks.

There are several reasons for the flush of delight. For one, you are usually so glad to be rid of the old president, you'd feel good even if the new man was your brotber-inlaw

For another, the transition pe-riod between his election and his inauguration is so long that people wbo voied against him forget they once called him a competent mug. In the cuphoria of seeing the government come to life again, everybody is willing to believe he spent the transition studying at Presideot's School and will turn out to be a new George Washington.

the national psyche. After 10 or 11 weeks of fretful idleness, during which they are reduced to conjuring news out of weightless air, they become so giddly at the prospect of returning to honest work that they slaver communicable affecuon all over the new man as well as his wife children, parents, ancestors, high-school teachers

I recall the eagerness with which they told an inert nation that President-elect Kennedy loved to lap up James Bond polboilers, and the buge sale of Bond paperbacks that immediately ensued

* * * Scarcely an American now alive is too young to recall the delight with which press and television suffused the continent with news that the new president, Gerald Ford, rose each morning, went down to the kitchen and — yes, ladies and gentlemen - made his own breakfast! This sweet period when everybody loves the new president is still referred to by old-timers as the boneymooo, but the more appropriate term in contemporary polilics might be "the buildup."

During the buildup the new fel-low's talents, tastes and proclivities, even if they are considerable, refined and decent, are inflated to proportions that a genuine hero would be hard pressed to live up to. As a result he usually turns into sad disappointment before the first flowers bloom in the Rose Garden.

The Attractive Villain

At 71, James Mason Brings His Non-Method Technique

And 'Polite Arrogance' to the Stage

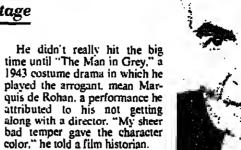

He has played a remarkable range of characters in nearly 100 films, from Captain Nemo in "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" to Humbert Humbert in "Lolita." He was nominated for Acad-emv Awards for "A Star Is Born" and for "Georgy Girl."

"Not that I get very worked up about these things," he said of the unproductive nominations, "but we all bitch about how the Oscars are distributed in a sort of distant, sneery way. They're fun-ny, weird. It's like the World Series. the presidential election."

Mason said he has "a perfectly pedestrian attitude" toward acting. "I think it's very hard to be an actor if you have that attitude because most of our generation are actors who make their living interpreting the works of others, and in order to make themselves feel persons of importance, they make out that the art of acting is something far more mysterious than it really is. You may guess from these hiots that I am not very sympathetic with the whole Method thing."

Mason was a middle-class outh who went to Cambridge University and trained as an architect, appearing along the way in several amateur theater productions. When he graduated, he found that jnbs in architecture were harder to get than work as a stage actor.

His first film role, in a movie called "Late Extra," came in 1935. In 1938, be collaborated on his first independent production, with a woman named Pamela Kellino (wbo in 1941 became his wife) and her husband at the time, Roy Kellico. "I Met a Murderer," made on a low budget, was critically successful but opened the week war was declared. It failed at the box offices, which were closed for three months.

Mason was once threatened by the British Film Producers Association because he had a habit of criticizing the industry for not making enough good films. (A news clip from 1952 reveals that he once slapped writer William Saroyan across the mouth be-cause Saroyan would not stop talking during a movie. "I was only acting for very frustrated movie fans in the world," Mason Ronald Reagan's campaign. "They deal with a limited number of subjects: violence and sex, and the drug scene, and the Vietnam war, and science fiction, which of course are the current interests of the young people of America, but the resulting films are pretty dull. And one of the reasons is that they have to keep one eve on television."

Mason and his first wife were a well-known Hollywood couple, raising eyebrows at times with what was seen as their unconvenlional approach to rearing their daughter, Portland, and son, Могдал.

"Everybody sneered at us at the time because we gave them a very easy time of it. I mean, when they didn't have to get up and go to school the next day, we let them stay up. Actually, it worked out quite well. They're both quite well-balanced. I mean, compared with my friends' children, they came out quite well."
